EVEN IN THIS DAY of accelerated education, a group of business and professional people of the area still must have set some sort of record of going through college.

The college course lasted less than a day. We doubt if much education of the book-learning type rubbed off on us. But we did learn a few things just the same.

Basically we learned how it was possible to transform a 42-year old grammar school into a junior college in a few short months.

It was most revealing ... and educational.

We were guests last Thursday of the West Valley Junior College staff and the Chambers of Commerce of Campbell, Los Gatos and Santa Clara, the three cities served by the district. It was the first orientation day of the new college.

Most of us were impressed by the fact that the junior college, which will open with more than 2000 students on September 14, gives every indication of being a going concern right now. It was hard to realize that just last June, elementary grade youngsters were swarming over the same area.

It has been quite a transition.

-o-

WE ARE ENTHUSIASTIC over the new junior college coming to town.

We believe it will give our community a both culturally and economically speaking.

In our opinion, (and there are many who disagree), it would be beneficial to our community if West Valley Junior College would permanently locate within our city limits.

We recognize that there will be problems. But we think that the problems will be outweighed by the advantages.

So we look forward optimistically to the opening of the junior college next week.

-o-

AT THE ORIENTATION DAY last Thursday we were particularly impressed by Dr. Wallace Hall's presentation of the faculty.

We have taken the liberty of quoting from some of Dr. Hall's remarks because we think you would be interested in the kind of faculty that will be on hand when the college opens.

Here then are some excerpts from Dr. Hall's talk:

"...We have completed the arduous task of selecting the 50 men and women upon who will rest the responsibility for the instruction and counseling program at West Valley next year. The group consists of 11 women and 39 men, with an age span ranging from 24 to 53, their average age is 37. Forty of the faculty members are married,

Junior College opens Monday

History will be made next Monday, September 14, when the West Valley Junior College opens for the first time.

More than 2000 students have registered for classes at the college which for the next five years will operate from temporary quarters in the former Campbell Grammar School at Winchester and Campbell.

Until last June (and for 42 years previously) the facilities now being used by the junior college were used by elementary grades of the Campbell Union (elementary) School District.

The elementary district had found that the school had become impractical for the rapidly-expanding district in which there are now 19 schools. Plans call for the eventual sale of the 13-acre parcel by the school district.

But for the next five years, the property has been leased by the West Valley Junior College District. The college district plans to find a permanent site for the campus during the lease period.

The West Valley Junior College District serves the Campbell, Santa Clara and Los Gatos high school districts. The 2000-plus enrolled this year are only first year students.

It is anticipated that next year's enrollment will exceed 3000 full-time students.

On pages 6-7 in this issue will be found more information about this area's newest higher education institution.

LEADERS--The four men (right) have played a big part in transforming West Valley Junior College from a dream into reality. They spoke at the orientation day last Thursday attended by business and professional people of the area. Left to right, Leon Poe, Santa Clara, leader in the citizens' committee; Dr. Edward C. Browne, clerk of the governing board; Dr. Wallace Hall, college president and R. E. (Gene) Arnold, dean of campus facilities.

Rincon-Latimer issue

Council holds hearing Monday on Expressway

Aroused residents will have an opportunity next Monday, September 14, at the City Council meeting to express their feelings about the San Tomas Expressway. The council meets at 8 p. m. in the City Hall.

Of particular concern to business people and residents alike of the community is the blocking off of Rincon and Latimer avenues by the proposed expressway.

The hearing next Monday has been called by the City Council to get the "grass roots" opinion of the citizens of the community before the city attempts to take action to amend the expressway agreement that was adopted by the city last year.

Under this agreement, both Rincon and Latimer will "deadend" at the expressway.

Spearheaded by the Campbell Chamber of Commerce and supported by The Campbell Press, a movement recently gathered momentum in town which has as its goal toget the proper authorities to re-examine the situation.

High school-Campbell-Moreland

School districts vote on bonds next Tuesday

Three school districts in the area put their future fiscal welfare on the line next Tuesday, September 15, when the electorate in the districts will be asked to approve three separate bond issues.

Approval of the bond issues by the voters will allow Campbell Union High School, Campbell Union (elementary) and Moreland districts to continue with the state assistance program. This program has made it possible for the districts to keep pace with their explosive gain in enrollment during the past years without over-burdening the taxpayers of the districts.

The complicated financial formula under which the three districts operate necessitates the districts to be bonded 5% of their assessed valuation to be eligible for state financial aid.

Passage of the bond issue will not, therefore, increase the bond redemption tax rates of the districts, as each district is paying the maximum rate.

Campbell Union High School District is asking for approval of a $10 million bond issue.

Campbell elementary is requesting approval of a $5 million bond issue and a $3 million state aid authorization.

Moreland is asking for $1,900,000 bond issue approval.

Editorial

The week that will be

Next week will be a busy one for this community, for there are a number of epochmaking events that will have a direct or indirect bearing on the welfare of the area.

RINCON-LATIMER ISSUE

On Monday, September 14, the City Council has scheduled a public hearing at which interested citizens are urged to attend to express their opinions on the blocking of Rincon and Latimer avenues by the San Tomas Expressway.

Under the expressway agreement that was approved by the City Council last year, Rincon and Latimer Avenues will be blocked off. During the last few weeks, civic groups, led by the Chamber of Commerce and interested businessmen and residents, have expressed concern over the closing off of these two streets. They feel that these road blocks will have a detrimental effect on the entire community. They would like to have the City Council attempt to get the original expressway agreement amended before the expressway is constructed to allow for both streets to cross the thoroughfare.

To get the expressway agreement amended at this late date will be a difficult task. Councilmen have indicated that they are in sympathy with the suggestions. They also feel that before they take any action, they would like to ascertain how the citizens actually feel on the matter.

And that is why the public hearing has been set for next Monday, September 14.

The Campbell Press sincerely feels that the closing of the two streets will be a liability to the community. We feel that another hard look at the situation should be taken by the County Trafficways Committee and that the expressway agreement be amended.

We know that many residents and business people of the community feel the same way.

We urge all those interested to attend the City Council meeting next Monday and express their opinions on the issue.

SCHOOL BOND ISSUES

On Tuesday, September 15, voters in the Campbell Union High School District will go to the polls to cast ballots on bond issues that have a tremendous bearing on the future of the schools in the area.

The high school district is asking for approval of a $10 million bond issue.

Campbell Union (elementary) School District is requesting approval of a $5 million bond issue and a $3 million state aid loan.

Moreland School District is asking for approval of a $1,900,000 bond issue.

The Campbell Press urges a "YES" vote on all the requests.

Because of the complex financial formula affecting school districts in rapidly-expanding areas, districts must be bonded to 5% of the assessed valuation in order to receive financial support from the state.

It is obvious to all who have seen these districts explode during the past years that without state aid it would be impossible to provide the educational facilities for the youngsters that have jammed the schools.

Under this complicated financial support arrangement, it is possible to bond to the necessary capacity without increasing the bond redemption tax.

Over-simplified it simply means that when districts are at the legal limit in bond redemption, no further taxes are added. In other words, the burden is spread over the entire state of California, and over a long period of time, instead of being allowed to overwhelm the hard-pressed fast-growing districts.

The growth of these school districts in our area has been phenomenal.

In less than 10 years the Campbell Union High School District has grown from one high school with an enrollment of 1800 to a district of six high schools with an enrollment of 10,600.

Campbell elementary now has 19 schools and Moreland has grown even faster. Without state aid Moreland would probably have to go to triple sessions and Campbell to double sessions.

There is, in our opinion, no other logical way to finance the educational facilities of the school districts.

We urge an overwhelming "Yes" vote next Tuesday, September 15.

JUNIOR COLLEGE OPENS

Most of the elementary schools and the high schools are opening this week and the usual back-to-school problems are in full sway. But aside from the addition of a couple of new schools (Westmont High opens for the first time as do Capri and Castlemont elementary schools), it is sort of a repeat performance of other years.

But this year something really has been added to the local educational picture.

West Valley Junior College opens on September 14. More than 2000 students will be on hand in the converted Campbell Grammar School.

years all three districts have had a fantastic growth. The high school district has grown from one school with 1800 enrollment to six schools with an enrollment of 10,600. It is anticipated that the district will need a seventh high school by 1967 and an eighth by 1970.

The $10 million bond issue, if approved, will be marketed as needed to keep the district bonded to full legal capacity of 5% of assessed valuation. This has been the method successfully used by the district in the past in the building of the five high schools.

CAMPBELL

Campbell elementary district officials point out that approval of the $5 million bond issue and $3 million state authorization means specifically that three complete new schools could be built with this money. The money will provide also for acquisition of land. And, officials add, it will keep the district from going on double sessions.

During 1953-54 the enrollment of the elementary district was 4,115 in eight schools. This year in the 19 schools in the district and enrollment of 11,302 is expected which will rise to 15,000 by 1970-71.

MORELAND

And the situation is not much different in the Moreland District.

Moreland officials explain that because of the state program the district has been able to stay off double sessions for four years. Without state help, they add, the district would probably be on triple sessions.

In the entire history of the Moreland district only slightly more than $3 million worth of bonds have been sold for school construction (the legal limit set by the state). The state has provided for more than $8 million.

The issue of $1,900,000 will qualify the district to continue in the state loan program. Moreland is made up primarily of homes with no industry to help carry the educational costs and thus school leaders in the district maintain that there is no other source but state money to carry on an adequate educational program.

The district is gaining about 800 new students each year. The bond approval will allow the district to house new youngsters as they appear.

AT THE LUNCHEON which followed the orientation session, the featured speaker was Dr. Dean McHenry, chancellor of the University of California at Santa Cruz which is scheduled to open next year.

Dr. McHenry pointed out the interesting parallel that both UCSC and WVJC are "pioneers." Both institutions have clear-cut functions to perform in the higher education picture of the state, he added.

The parallel is also evident in the administrators.

Dr. McHenry also paid tribute to Dr. Hall, as one of the outstanding figures in education in this state. He further explained that he should know, inasmuch as their acquaintance goes back to when they were roommates in graduate school.

It will be interesting to watch the two "pioneers", WVJC and UCSC, develop with two college roommates at their respective helms

How long has it been since you've been back to school?

It's true, times have changed since many of us were last in school . . . architecture, modern methods of education and the students themselves have changed. A solid education has never been so important to the youngsters living in your neighborhood!

Young families look for superior educational opportunities and other civic improvements when they consider buying a home in your community. Good school facilities improve your community's worth and help keep your property's value high.

Most new schools are financed through the sale of municipal bonds. These bonds distribute the cost over a long period to keep taxes at a reasonable level. Interest rates are decided by competitive bidding . . . added assurance that your community will get the lowest interest rates on their bonds.

Society seeks house to haunt for Halloween

Do you know of an old, vacant house in the Campbell area that wouldn't mind being haunted for a few days in October? The members of the Children's Home Society, Carousel Chapter, an adoption agency, are looking for such a place to use as a "haunted house" for Halloween...to raise funds for their organization.

Last year the Society rented the old "Keesling House" on South Bascom Avenue, which since has been torn down to make room for new development. Now the members are searching for another location which can be decorated with witches, ghosts and spooks to thrill the youngsters Halloween week. Anyone having knowledge of such a place is asked to contact Mrs. Edward Bianchi, 650 N. Central Ave., the president, at 378-2446.

Also associated with Carousel Chapter are these other Campbell residents: Mesdames B.W. Creighton, Glenn McClelland, and John Russell.

Funds raised from this project will go to pay for the overhead expense of the Children's Home Society, which is a Statewide adoption agency supported by private funds. The Home Society arranges for the placement of an infant in a private home for adoption.

Although the organization receives some funds from the United Fund, the major portion is raised by the various chapters of the organization through-out the state. Social workers, food, clothing, and medical care for the babies being cared for in temporary foster homes until adoptions are final, are all paid for by private funds. Carousel Chapter's project of "The Haunted House" will assure many homeless infants a brighter future.

THAT FEMININE TOUCH

By Dolores Keywood

Attention Teenagers--Although the subject of school is not always the most pleasant one, it is that time again. And once again time to think about back to school fashions. Please note that I say fashions and not clothes, for the dictionary tells us that the word clothes means "covering for a person's body," while fashion means "the prevailing style or current use in wearing apparel."

Now this doesn't mean for you to drag your mom down to the most expensive dress shop and buy everything that has just arrived. On the contrary! You probably have many items in your wardrobe that are quite fashionable and some that may be converted beautifully.

The shift is still very much IN and so is the dropped waistline and if you have even one jumper in your wardrobe you're really in luck. You can change the entire appearance of it by wearing a classic or turtle neck sweater underneath. Or you might go in for the blouse look on other occasions. The ruffled blouse is more important than ever but be sure your hair style isn't too fussy or this will be too much and take away from the ruffles. The "nothing blouse" is ideal for most jumpers, as it is completely void of detail and even the busiest print may be worn with it.

For the teenager who has grown since last fall remember to check the length of your skirts. That short look is out and the only time a shorter skirt may be worn is with the knee sox that are going to be so popular. Knee sox are not only very smart to look at but are practical as well and will keep the legs warm during those cooler winter days. If you are going to start a wardrobe of knee sox, may I suggest you start with your basic colors, such as black or brown. These may be worn with most items.

So, back to school you go and you'll find it a little more pleasant if you have a little fun with your wardrobe.

Please send any questions to me c/o The Campbell Press.

How it was done

Grammar School turns into junior college

How do you take a 13-acre grammar school and convert it into a full-scale college facility -- complete with laboratories, library, student union and administration and counseling offices -- in a matter of a few short months?

This is exactly the challenge -- and the achievement -- of the administrators of West Valley Junior College; and the top challenger and top achiever of Project Make-Do is R. E. "Gene" Arnold, dean of campus facilities.

Early last spring, Dean Arnold was faced with the problem either of locating a tract on which to set up portable college buildings or of finding an existing plant that could accommodate the infant West Valley College in late afternoons and evenings.

During his search he learned that the Campbell Grammar School at 51 E. Campbell Ave. was about to be abandoned.

He forthwith recommended that the plant be leased, and West Valley had a home, even though small and temporary.

Next, Higgins and Root, Los Gatos architects, were engaged to draw up plans to convert the plant to junior college use. Armed with plans for the various buildings -- some of them dating back to 1929 -- Arnold, Dean of Instruction Gordon Aumack, the architects and consulting engineers, backed all along the way by President Hall and the Governing Board, set to work to determine which classrooms would be best suited to particular subject matter areas.

"It is to the credit of the architects and the engineers," Arnold said, "that we have retained the exact educational program decided upon before we found this building. That is what comes of wise and careful planning with what was available."

The plans were completed and the renovation of the plant was put out to bid, with R. W. Michael Contractors of Los Gatos low at approximately $190,000. For the Michael performance Arnold had more words of praise.

OFFICES?

What about offices? Traditionally, Arnold said, a grammar school contains office space for a principal, a vice-principal and a nurse. But colleges should have offices for deans, administrators, business officers, librarians, counselors, and above all for faculty, who need quiet places in which to work with students.

The problem was partially solved by moving in temporary units for a bookstore, student personnel services and business services, and that problem presented another problem. The tons-heavy units were eased in by pieces -- in 10 foot wide by 12 foot high sections through archways that were a bare 12 feet wide and 13 feet high.

Offices for six faculty were located in the main building and space for 12 more was allocated in a rented private dwelling at 80 W. Rincon Ave. As for the rest of the faculty, those instructors who have exclusive use of a particular classroom will make it double for an office for the present.

The space just isn't there for the present, and Gene Arnold knows it. He has spent weeks and months, day and night, weekdays and weekends, prowling every bit of available floor space "within hollering distance" of the college's "permanent temporary" campus.

Parking was another headache, but Arnold finally leased two small acreages near the college -- enough to park 1,000 cars.

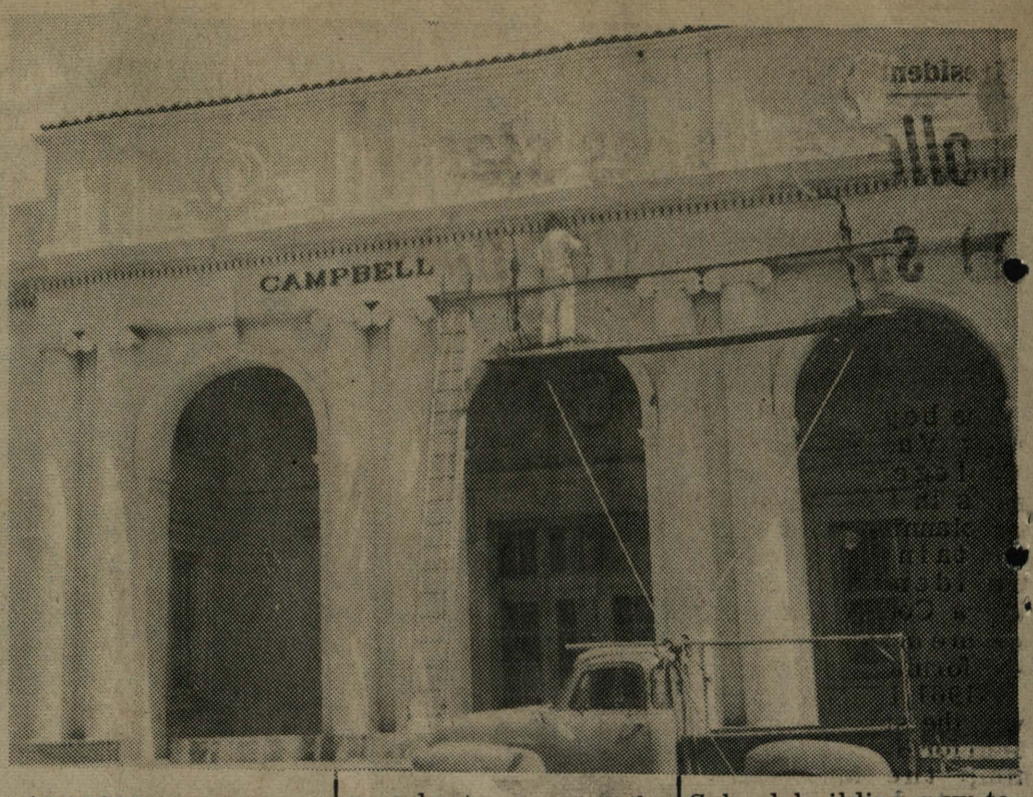
CRAMPED

So the tribulations of a dean of campus facilities. West Valley will begin its life with some 1,600 to 1,700 full time day students in a facility of about 83,000 square feet on about 21 acres including parking areas. That figures out to about 52 square feet per student, less than half the 110 square feet recommended by authorities in the field. The total acreage is less than a third of what is considered optimum for 2,000 students.

Next year the campus enrollment is expected to top 3,000 full time day students; and next year Dean Arnold will be seen searching, cajoling, negotiating for more space -- in temporaries, in vacant dwellings, in classrooms of nearby churches.

REST AREAS

Within the next six or seven years California will have some 250 Safety Roadside Rest Areas along its State highways, under a program approved by the California Highway Commission. To implement the program will require an annual appropriation of about $800,000.



ALMOST GONE—Only CAMPBELL remains in the above picture as the sign painters get ready to remove the last evidence of the school sign that for 42 years had graced the Campbell Grammar School building now to be used by the West Valley Junior College for the next five years at least.

$100 DOLLAR DINNER

The Century Club of the Metropolitan YMCA of San Jose and Santa Clara Valley will stage its annual dinner in the "Y," 1717 The Alameda, San Jose, next Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Reservations for the dinner will be limited to 250, and deadline for applying is Thursday, September 10, according to Dinner Chairman Dan McCown. He urged interested persons to telephone the YMCA, 298-1717.

President reports

College traces start to state master plan

By Wallace W. Hall
President, West Valley
Junior College

The beginnings of West Valley Junior College have their roots in the foresight and planning of not only certain distinguished residents of Santa Clara County but also of members of the California Legislature.

In 1961, in conformity with the state's Master Plan for Higher Education, the legislature adopted a policy requiring all areas of the state to become part of a districts maintaining a junior college. The lawmakers also charged each county's Committee on School District Reorganization to develop a master plan for junior college districts within the county. Santa Clara County was the first in the area to meet this requirement.

REASONS

There was good reason for this overall policy. In California, all students graduating from high school are entitled to continue their education in public junior colleges, tuition-free. The cost of this education is borne by taxes. Local taxpayer's still pay for a student's junior college education, even though he may be attending an institution outside his own community.

A public hearing--the first of several--on a proposal to form a West Valley Junior College District was held on July 16, 1962. A citizen's committee--aided by city and county officials and trustees and administrators of the Santa Clara, Campbell and Los Gatos-Saratoga High School districts--went to work on the problem.

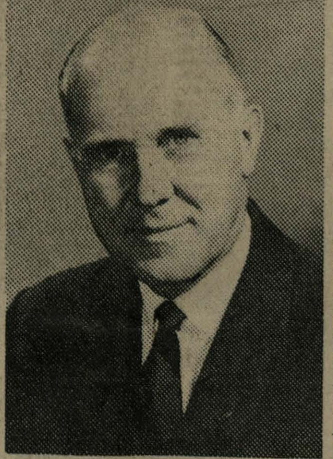
Citizen's Advisory Committees were formed by the trustee boards in each district, and from them a Citizen's Committee for a West Valley Junior College District, with Robert W. Brydon of Campbell as chairman. After much study by the committee a proponent's statement for formation of the district was formulated.

It indicated that the three high school districts involved had 5,320 full-time and part-time students enrolled in junior colleges outside the community in 1960-61 with local taxpayers paying $1.5 million for their education. On October 11, 1962, the State Board of Education approved the proposal for formation of the West Valley District, and County Superintendent of Education C.R. Timpany set an election on January 8, 1963.

The voters of the three districts approved formation of the junior college district 9,325 to 5,824. On April 16, 1963, the voters elected seven trustees from a list of 31 candidates. The board members took office on May 6 of that year and named R. E. Arnold of the Santa Clara County Office of Education to the post of interim superintendent. On July 18, the board appointed Dr. Wallace W. Hall Superintendent of the District and President of the College.

URGENT NEED

Because of the urgency of the need for permanent facilities, Dr. Hall and the governing board decided to put the issue of a $16 million bond election before the voters on March 10, 1964. They realized full well the difficulty of passing bond issues when a college is not yet in operation. They were also aware, however, that the press of more and more students needing the education to which they were entitled and that the $1.5 million drain of local funds would go nowhere but upward.



WALLACE W. HALL
College President

The bond issue did not pass, even though a majority of the voters—58 percent—favored it. The law requires that 66 2/3 percent of the voters approve. Even so, it was a valiant effort, and administrators and trustees of the West Valley Junior College District are convinced that on "the next time around" more voters than ever will realize the tremendous contribution to the cultural and economic life of the community the institution will make.

Successful bond issue or no, the voters of West Valley have indicated their desire for a college, and the work has proceeded. Plans went ahead for the opening of the first session on September 14. After careful and arduous screening, a highly intelligent, alert and eager faculty was engaged. Temporary quarters were obtained in the old Campbell Grammar School, and early in August the staff moved in.

TEMPORARY

The temporary quarters are far from ideal. Overcrowding will be immense; inconveniences will be many. But the administrators and trustees are going ahead, calm in the assurance that everyone --from custodians to deans, from the football coach to instructors in languages--will weigh the hardships against the excitement of being in on the "ground floor" of a great new institution, and the hardships will fade into insignificance.

What about the future? West Valley Junior College will have in the neighborhood of 14,500 students by 1985, according to the best estimates of expert educational consultants. The population of this district will increase from 281,000 to 466,000.

The State Department of Education recommends that community colleges such as West Valley be planned for 4,500 to 5,000 students. If this recommendation is followed, this college can be expected to be occupying three campuses, then, within the next generation.

College offers 80 evening classes

Eighty courses in 26 subject matter areas will be offered between the hours of 7 and 10 p.m. during the fall semester at West Valley Junior College, Nero Pruitt, Dean of Extended Day, has announced.

TWO TYPES

The graded or credit courses are governed by the same regulations as apply to day classes and will count toward degrees, Pruitt said. The non-graded courses are offered to provide continuing education in the community to adult students and carry no credit.

Admission is open to high school graduates and to persons over 18 who can profit by the instruction regardless of whether they have completed high school. Persons living outside the West Valley Joint Junior College District must receive a release from their own district before being admitted.

Registration for credit courses began Tuesday and will end Friday, for non-credit courses, registration will be at the first class meeting. Persons with additional questions about registration should call the Dean of Extended Day, 379-1733, or call in person at the campus.

Six stages and a number of shows are scheduled to entertain the fair visitor. Headlining the show slate is the main grandstand show, starring Bob Crosby. The program, playing Wednesday through Saturday nights at 8:15 p.m. with matinees on Saturday at 2:15 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 p.m., also stars Frank Gorshin, the Earl Twins, and the Good Time Singers.

In a different vein is the County Combo Competition with the county's top combos competing for trophies and awards during a four-night program on Fair Family Frolics Stage at 6 p.m., beginning Monday.

Fairgoers will also view the big Destruction Derby Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. in the main grandstand when close to 100 cars will smash into each other to see which one will be the last running.

Harness racing will attract sports fans with a full slate of races Wednesday through Saturday night at 7:15 p.m.
